IN PEACE PLAN

Dread of a Battle in Manchuria Which Might Upset Everything Prompts President to Hasten Negotiations.

RUSSIAN WAR PARTY
HAS NOT GIVEN UP

Military Element Makes Effort to Dissuade Ozar From Making Peace—Picture Brilliant Prospects of Army.

TOKIO, June 20.—The work of organizing the Japanese Peace Commission is progressing favorably, and it was announced at the War Office today that if Russia names her plenipotentiaries in time it will be possible for the Japanese party to sail for America on June 20, when the Emperor of India leaves Yokohama for Vancouver, B. C.—a voyage of about two weeks.

By Wire from the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 20.—President Roosevelt is seriously concerned over the news from the far East. He fears that the battle which now seems imminent may shatter the peace plans which have already reached such a favorable state.

There is little doubt that Japan prefers to delay an armistice long enough to give Ozyama a chance to strike another telling blow. The reports of the strength of the Russian position are given little credence here. The Japanese believe Ozyama can crush Linerich, and there appears to be ground for their belief.

It is the fear of the President that any way the fortunes of the battle might so the result would jeopardize the interests of peace. A crushing defeat, instead of further humbling Russia, would probably inflame the people and cause the negotiations to fall flat. While a Russian success would advance the war party to such an extent that the Ozar would probably consent to continue the war.

Knowing, as he does, the danger of delay, President Roosevelt is making every effort to hasten the peace negotiations preliminary and, if possible, arrange an armistice to thwart the impending battle.

Thus far, however, neither country has formally announced its plenipotentiaries, and, as a result, the President has been in no position to even tentatively suggest an armistice, which cannot be brought about until negotiations are formally under way.

Japan will naturally not seek an armistice with another victory apparently within her grasp, and Russia is not likely to make any advances. The result is that President Roosevelt will probably send another identical note to the warring negotiators, suggesting an armistice—a note similar to the one which brought about the present negotiations.

NELIDOFF MAY NOT REPRESENT RUSSIA.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 20.—The correspondent of the World and Post-Dispatch on direct authority that it is not Mr. Nelidoff, Russia's Ambassador in Paris, who will be named as the Russian representative in the Washington peace conference, but the Russian Ambassador in Rome, M. Muraviev.

As possible associates of Muraviev are mentioned Baron Rosen, Count Cassini, and Prof. De Martens, the Professor of International Law in the University of St. Petersburg, and a number of the International Court of Arbitration at The Hague.

The Ozar's Government has not yet been informed of Japan's wishes, either in regard to the number of envoys or the time of the conference. It is thought that dispatches have arrived from Washington containing intelligence on these points, but as yesterday was a great religious holiday (Whit Sunday) in Russia, public business was suspended, and the few officials who dropped in to the foreign ministry did not open any communications—or say anything about it if they did.

Miss Victoria Redmond, Found Lifeless With Chloroform Near, Meaning Man Wh. Died With Her Name on His Lips.

Did the hope of joining her sweetheart in the death which he had gained at his own hand three weeks before, prompt Miss Victoria Redmond of 4533 Finney avenue to end her own life with chloroform Monday?

Several hours after her dead body was found in her room, this note, undated, undressed and written in lead pencil, was discovered:

"Will the finder of this note please notify Mr. Steve Stuart of Woodville, Miss. Tell him I will be dead when he gets this."

Tuesday morning there was found in her effects a letter from Stuart's sister, postmarked at Woodville, May 30, telling her of the suicide of Stuart.

While the wording of Miss Redmond's note indicates that she did not know of her sweetheart's suicide, no motive for her own self-destruction save dependency at his death can be ascribed by her mother or others who knew her.

The fact that the letter from Miss Stuart had been in her possession at least 16 days, indicates that, despite the phrasing of the note, she knew of Stuart's death.

Did she phrase her note as she did to protect the memory of the man she loved, wishing to keep the world in ignorance of the fact that he had killed himself?

Or had she planned her own suicide for three weeks, written the note at the moment of her self-destruction, and then, when she took the fatal step, failed to rewrite the note?

The letter from Woodville is dated "June 20," but the post-mark of "May 30" shows the date to be a mistake. It was received in St. Louis June 2 or 3, and the envelope bears no mark to show that there was a delay in its delivery.

It shows that there had been a quarrel between Miss Redmond and Stuart before her departure from Mississippi to join her mother some three weeks ago. It was signed "Bessie Stuart."

"My Dear Vic—I write to tell you my brother's death, as his last request was to let you know he was dead, and that he never ceased loving you. I hardly know how to begin telling you. We are all so sad; mamma takes it so hard."

"O. Vic, if only he had died a natural death, it would be suicide. He died with your name on his lips. He died with your name on his lips. He died with your name on his lips."

Darling, don't think we blame you at all—but he did love you so, and since you left Woodville and you all had a terrible misunderstanding he was never like himself again.

"My brother did love you so, and he believed to the very last that you loved him, and certainly you did, for he was so good and noble, and now to think of his death! O. Vic, won't you shed just one tear for his sake? Come to visit us and see his grave. I will love you as brother did."

Mrs. Almina Redmond, Miss Redmond's mother, came to St. Louis from Newport, Miss., last March, and had been employed in the laboratory of Dr. E. D. Albin, a patent medicine manufacturer. Miss Redmond joined her mother six weeks ago, and was employed in a 10-cent store on Washington avenue.

Mrs. Redmond was this morning completely prostrated over her daughter's death and the tragic tale of disappointment which the note and the letter revealed.

Tuesday morning the mother will take

DREAM SAVED
MAN ON TRIAL
FOR MURDER

Jacques Stark, Principal Witness Against John A. Schneider, Had Vision in Which Crime Was Repeated.

CHANGES HIS IDEAS
ON IDENTIFICATION.

Combination of Circumstances Looked Bad for Prisoner, but Dream and Sweetheart Saved Accused Man.

A dream dreamed by the State's principal witness cleared John A. Schneider of having murdered Saloon Keeper Charles Mutsberg of Mississippi and Chouteau avenue, shortly after midnight on the morning of Nov. 21, 1934.

The dreamer was Jacques Stark, a witness to the killing, who had positively identified Schneider as the masked robber who shot and killed Mutsberg. The dream was dreamed on the night of Jan. 18, but the Circuit Attorney did not learn of it until Monday, when he summoned Stark to his office, the case against Schneider coming up Tuesday.

Confronting the Circuit Attorney in the privacy of the latter's office Stark related his dream. Two months after the murder he had a vision. He saw again enacted before his eyes the slaying of Mutsberg. Two men entered the saloon wearing black muffs as masks and with their hats pulled down over their eyes. Stark and a man named Charles Salisbury and several others were in the saloon.

The masked robbers commanded all present to hold up their hands. Salisbury resisted and was shot in the forehead, but not seriously wounded. Mutsberg, the saloon keeper, got a shotgun and rushed to the front door after the robbers, one of whom shot him. He then followed them outside and was again shot. Then he re-entered the saloon and fell dead at the bar.

Where dream differed. Thus far Stark's dream was a duplicate of the real killing of Mutsberg. But in his dream, he says, at the moment that Mutsberg was shot at the door the muffer-mask fell from the face of the man who shot him and Stark says he saw that the man was not Schneider. Simultaneously the two robbers looked at him, he says, and called aloud in sepulchral tones:

"Not Schneider! Not Schneider!" Because of this dream, Stark told Circuit Attorney Sager he was not willing to take the stand and swear that Schneider was the man who killed Mutsberg.

This left the State without an identifying witness. Salisbury, who had fought with the slayer of Mutsberg, had positively refused to swear that Schneider was the murderer. Schneider had been arrested in the first place because one of the two hats left behind by the robbers, together with their muffer-masks thrown away on the street outside, bore the name "John J. Schneider" on a card of the Silver State Bakery of Denver, Colo.

Sweetheart Aided Alibi. The middle initial did not correspond with that of the St. Louis Schneider, but both of the hats were much too large for him. In addition, he established what was considered by many a satisfactory alibi, his sweetheart, 16-year-old Ollie Elgar of Perryville, Mo., who was stopping at the same house with him, testifying that he was making love to her until 11 o'clock on the night of the murder and that she saw him at 7 o'clock the next morning, and that when he told her good-night he had gone to his room for the night.

It was also learned that he had been stolen from a John J. Schneider in Denver, whose handwriting was found to correspond to the written name in the hat. But in the meantime the St. Louis Schneider had been arrested on Stark's testimony, held for the grand jury indicted and kept in jail awaiting trial on a charge of murder in the first degree.

With Stark's refusal again to positively identify Schneider as the slayer of Mutsberg the case against Schneider fell to the ground.

"I must enter a nolle prosequi in the case if your dream makes you unwilling to identify Schneider," said Circuit Attorney Sager to Stark.

Convinced by Dream. "I would not identify him as the murderer for all the money in the world," replied Stark. "I believe now that he is innocent, and I would feel that I had a great crime on my conscience if I swore that he was guilty."

Whereupon Circuit Attorney Sager, having no other evidence against Schneider, entered a nolle prosequi in his case and Schneider was released. He was held on another charge, that of violating the law by carrying a dangerous weapon, at the Missouri State Penitentiary, 201 California avenue, Aug. 1, 1934.

Stark did his dreaming at 1903 Papin street, where he lives.

MIDNIGHT AT NOON; FLASH!
DELUGE! DAY!

Startling Phenomenon Marks End of Month's Drouth—Half an Inch of Rain in 10 Minutes.

LIGHTNING KILLS FIVE ANIMALS; WIRES DOWN.

Darkness Due to Storm Clouds Over City, Not Usual Smoke Blanket—Sun Recovered in an Hour.

Midnight darkness, a deluge, during which nearly one-half an inch of rain fell within ten minutes, blinding flashes of lightning that terrified timid persons, crashes of thunder that were deafening and a drop of a degree a minute in temperature were features of Tuesday's storm.

And within thirty minutes after the rain ceased to fall the sun was shining and pedestrians and shoppers were out on Broadway enjoying the improved weather conditions and defying the weather man to send another storm.

For an hour during the middle of the day the darkness of midnight descended on St. Louis. The blackness came gradually but rapidly, and when the storm clouds that shut out the sun's rays were thickest, Broadway was almost deserted. Pedestrians moved cautiously along the sidewalks, street cars crawled along with their gongs clanging continuously and automobiles paid due attention to the dangers of speeding.

The darkness was not caused by a smoke pall, but was due entirely to storm clouds, which came from the west, and which hung close to the roofs of the buildings and extended for miles in all directions.

Rain Was a Deluge. Then, at 12:30, there was a blinding flash of lightning and deafening peal of thunder. The black cloud broke, and a deluge of rain which soon filled the streets from curb to curb, made drivers of the sewers begin to fall.

Within ten minutes nearly half an inch of rain fell. To be exact, the rainfall during the ten minutes while it was heaviest was .42 of an inch. Streets were flooded and many cellars were inundated.

It was the first rain that was more than a shower since May 29 and it was grateful in spite of its awe-inspiring features. There was little wind, the weather man saying that it was from 20 to 24 miles an hour.

At 1:15 p. m. when the rain ceased, the downpour aggregated .39 of an inch. Pedestrians on Broadway witnessed a peculiar sight at 12:30 p. m.

A flash of lightning seemed to circle around the dome of the Courthouse. The shock was felt all over the Courthouse. Judges, lawyers and witnesses alike were startled. In many of the rooms several window panes were cracked. Four were in the Circuit Clerk's office.

No damage was done otherwise, except to shattered nerves. The first rain of the day began at 11 o'clock, when the temperature was at 82 degrees. In 15 minutes .11 inch of rain had fallen, and the temperature had dropped to 70 degrees.

Showers continued until 12 o'clock, when the rainfall amounted to .22 inch. At 12:30 a terrific deluge broke, and enormous quantities of rain, accompanied by heavy thunder, flooded the streets.

As the rain fell and the thunder pealed, the dark clouds rolled away, and it was once more possible to see one's way about the streets and sidewalks. The streets ran curdy deep with water, and the sewers, which since May 29 have had no rain water to take care of, became rivers.

During the showers there was much thunder, which grew in volume as the storm progressed.

Five Animals Killed. At noon lightning struck a stable belonging to the city garbage plant at Vandeventer avenue and Forest park boulevard and killed four mules and one horse outright. Several other horses and mules in the stable were unharmed. During the electrical storm most of the telegraph and telephone wires in the city were temporarily disabled.

The official forecast is: "Partly cloudy tonight and Wednesday, with showers; slightly lower temperature tonight. Variable winds."

Rain has fallen over a large part of the country, but no heavy storms have been reported.

The local weather bureau anticipates no serious results in this section from the newly-developed upper river flood. It is expected that the Mississippi at St. Louis will rise slowly for a few days.

PRESIDENT C. W. STEWART AND SPIRIT PHOTOS MADE BY MRS. JOSIE K. FOLSOM.

Official Charges Against Deposed President and Treasurer of Missouri Association, Alleging Fraud and Misconduct.

Dr. Olin D. Whittier, secretary, and Oscar F. Everts, editor and press agent, of the State Progressive Spiritualists' Association of Missouri, have, in the name of the executive board of the St. Louis branch of the organization, formulated official charges against Deposed President C. W. Stewart and Treasurer Rev. Josie K. Folsom.

These charges are accompanied by affidavits setting forth the alleged facts upon which they are based. They will be forwarded this week, it is said, to the headquarters of the National Spiritualists' Association in Washington, where a decision as to the propriety of the expulsion of President Stewart and Treasurer Mrs. Folsom will be made.

In the event that either side takes an appeal from this decision the matter will be fought to a finish before the national convention of the organization in Minneapolis next fall.

The charges against President Stewart are: "Unconstitutional and unpatriotic conduct at board meetings; ungentlemanly conduct in presence of ladies; insulting remarks to a majority of members of the executive board; obstructing and delaying the business of the board meetings; unfairness and partiality toward certain board members; assisting Josie K. Folsom, either through ignorance or connivance, in perpetrating gross frauds upon the public by supporting Josie K. Folsom in her work as medium for the Truth Seekers' Society."

Charges of Fraud. The charges against Treasurer Mrs. Folsom are: "Giving fraudulent independent spirit-writing, also bogus spirit pictures, thus degrading and injuring true spiritual phenomena; an unwelcome deceiving the unsuspecting public attracted to her hall by advertisements in the public press; false statements and conduct, also language unbecoming a minister of the Gospel of Spiritualism."

One affidavit in the case charges that three faces in a "spirit photo" given to a patron by Mrs. Folsom were reproductions of faces appearing in newspaper advertisements, newspaper clippings of cuts being also placed in evidence. One of these "spirit faces" was labeled as that of a "minister," another a "niece" and the third a "friend."

When it was learned that Mrs. Folsom was a "medium" for the "truth seekers," she was expelled from the organization, and we are convinced that Mrs. Folsom is a "medium" for the "truth seekers."

We are going to fight this thing through to a finish, first before the National Association in Washington and later, if necessary, before the National Spiritualists' Convention."

PROSECUTOR IN BETTING RING; NO
ARRESTS MADE

St. Louis County Official, After Observing Bookmakers' Methods at Delmar Track for an Hour, Is Still Undecided.

JOKES WITH ATTACHES; HAS DRINK WITH OWNER

Deputy Sheriff Also Enjoys Hospitality—Assistant Attorney Kiscaddon Plays Detective Gathering Evidence.

"It's too dry here, Roland. Let's find a wet spot!" So remarked Sam Adler, one of the proprietors of the Delmar Jockey Club, who had visited the betting ring at the Delmar track Monday afternoon for the ostensible purpose of satisfying himself as to whether the anti-pool-selling and bookmaking law was being violated.

At the time Adler extended the invitation the prosecutor was watching the progress of events at a book known as the "Texas Club," under the direct control of the Central Turf Association, which has charge of the betting privileges at Delmar track.

Johnston stood there 20 minutes. In that brief time he saw a score of bets made and several hundred dollars change hands. He observed that one man received the money, another held forth a miniature blackboard on which the odds were posted, a third recorded the wagers as they were received, on a large sheet of paper, while a fourth employee acted as cashier and took charge of the money.

The sheet on which the bets were tabulated was directly under the eye of Prosecutor Johnston. He watched it intently for several minutes.

Then he turned and said to a friend: "It does look as if they were recording bets."

Then "Billy" Hagermann, one of the best known bookmakers at the track, walked over to Johnston and, putting his arm around the Prosecutor's neck, said in a rather affectionate way, asked him how he felt.

"Fine," answered Johnston. Hagermann continued to crack jokes with the Prosecutor until Adler arrived. Johnston accepted Adler's invitation to have a drink, which they enjoyed at a remote corner of the bar.

The prosecutor then practically over and the Prosecuting Attorney did not return to the betting ring.

Mr. Johnston arrived at 5 and had an hour to see what was going on.

"I am going to watch this thing closely," he said to a Post-Dispatch reporter. "And if I become convinced that the law is being violated I shall certainly act. But just now I am not prepared to say what I intend to do."

Deputy Sheriff Clarence Campbell was also at the track, but he did not attempt to make any arrests. He spent considerable time at the bar enjoying the hospitality of the trackmen.

Assistant Prosecuting Attorney J. C. Kiscaddon was also at the track. After striding up and down the betting ring, in full view of the gamblers, several times, he announced in stage whispers that he proposed to "find out something."

"What are you going to find out?" he was asked.

"Hush," he answered. "Don't give me away. Few of these boys know me and I am getting hot on their trail."

It was reported that Kiscaddon desired to arrest all the bookmakers and to keep on raiding them until they closed down.

This he refused to confirm. "I am proceeding on my own lines," he said.

Just then Fred Essen, the Republican boss of St. Louis county appeared. Kiscaddon caught his eye, and approaching Essen asked him if he had made a bet.

"No," replied Essen, good naturedly. "I never bet on the ponies."

"You had better not," remarked the Assistant Prosecutor grimly. "If you had I might have used you for a witness."

Kiscaddon remained in the betting ring nearly two hours. The bookies knew his wall and watched his movements closely.

Sheriff Hergel was not on hand, and in his absence Deputy Sheriff said he did not feel called upon to make an arrest.

The deputy spent part of afternoon near the book operated by Todd and Charles Cella, brothers of Louis Cella, who with C. A. Tillis and Sam Adler, own the Delmar track.

Six books were in operation and at each about six men were employed. There were 200 spectators on hand. Most of them were betters. The bookies refused to take any bet less than $1. None of them expressed a fear that the St. Louis County authorities would molest them.

Accused of Selling Minor Gun. A warrant was issued for the arrest of W. Bottoman, 1209 Franklin avenue, charged with selling revolver in minor, by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Daniel Tuesday morning. Walter Lang Sr. charge. He said he found his son, aged 12, in possession of a .38-caliber revolver and that the latter said he bought it from Bottoman. This is the first warrant such a case issued by Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Dalton.

Alleged Strike Sympathizers Torture Nonunion Teamster in Chicago Streets.

CHICAGO, June 20.—Edward Biskett, a nonunion teamster employed by the National Express Company, was subjected to barbarous torture early today by four men alleged by him to be strike sympathizers.

Biskett was attacked in front of the Teamsters' Union headquarters. After being knocked down by the men, three fingers of his right hand were broken and the finger nails pulled out with nippers.

The victim appealed to the men to have mercy, but his cries were in vain, and when the assailants left he was unconscious in the street, where he was found later by a policeman.

"REMARKABLE, BUT TRUE" MORE BUSINESS THAN WORLD'S FAIR YEAR.

Among the more than Seven Hundred Thousand St. Louisans there are thousands of men who desire clothes perfection, for which they are willing to pay a fair price, and many thousands of men prefer clothes correctness that has back of it authoritative assurance of being fashionable at the present moment. There are many thousands of men who cannot be persuaded by questionable inducements of low price for garments that manufacturers offer to retailers at their own figures; a character of garments which fine retailers would not purchase early in the season, for reasons which left them on the manufacturers' hands.

Most men have no way of knowing the inside history and facts about clothes, but each day men are becoming acquainted with the fact that this house gives the very cream of clothes elegance—that this house gives the advanced tailoring fashions—that here exclusiveness is assured—and that our prices are no more than inferior garments are sold for every day.

We prove our claim for superior clothes by making the remarkable statement that we are doing more business than World's Fair year, which gave a gain of 79%. Without the enormous World's Fair transient business, we are now enjoying a greater patronage, conclusive evidence of public indorsement and that every day men are realizing that the foregoing statements are truths and that we have that which we claim—the best ready tailored clothes the world has received up to now.

LEE-FARRIS-SMITH CASES TO GO OVER

Another Continuance Until July Term Is Expected in State Bribery Trials.

ATTORNEYS GET TOGETHER

Belch and Hadley Make Up Their Differences and Now Working in Harmony.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., June 20.—The indications are strong that there will be no trial of the Lee, Farris and Smith cases in Jefferson City next week. The general opinion is that there will be another continuance of all three cases until the regular July term.

Attorney-General Hadley and Prosecuting Attorney Belch seem at last to have gotten together, and, it is said, will now act in harmony in the trial of the case. This understanding is said to have been reached after a conversation over the telephone yesterday.

The prediction is freely made here that the result of the matter will be that the indictment of Lee will in the end be quashed. He will probably be used as a witness in the Farris and Smith cases, and it is further predicted that unless the State has something more than the testimony of Lee to bring forward a conviction of Lee and Farris will be impossible.

Judge Davis, in setting the case for June 26 last week, stated at the time that he was getting tired of playing the part of a machine and making trips to Jefferson City merely to continue the cases. Moreover, he said the Lee case should either be tried or the indictment should be set aside, as it was in the nature of an outrage to hold the indictment over him just to force him to testify.

Partisans of Prosecutor Belch are free in their comments of Attorney-General Hadley's insistence in trying to force the Lee trial first, and attribute his desire to that end as a recognition of the fact that he believed that a conviction in that case could be obtained, while he considered one doubtful in the other cases.

It is generally believed here that Lee was offered immunity when he made his confession to former Attorney-General Crow and agreed to testify before the grand jury that brought forth the indictments against Farris and Smith, and that the State cannot in good faith prosecute him.

KILL'S MINE BOSS; IS SHOT BY POSSE

John Plummer Fatally Wounded Near Beaver, Mo., During Pursuit After Murder.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

BEAVER, Mo., June 20.—As a result of a feud of long standing John Plummer shot and killed Assistant Foreman W. L. Dale of Mine No. 66, near here, today, and was in turn fatally wounded while resisting capture by a posse.

Plummer was employed until recently in the mine, but was discharged by Dale, intensifying the ill-feeling between the two men. Visiting the mine before working today, Plummer met Dale, quarreled with him and finally shot him dead.

The murder aroused the greatest indignation. Dale having been a man of much popularity, and many citizens joined the officers in pursuit of the criminal.

Members of the posse finally caught sight of the fugitive and ordered him to surrender. When Plummer refused to yield on the order he fired at him with a shotgun, inflicting a wound from which he cannot recover. Coroner Mason has gone to the scene of the tragedy.

MANAGER IS HIDING IN CHICAGO TUNNEL?

Police Believe George W. Jackson Is Dodging Them to Escape Testifying.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 20.—A sensational feature was added today to the prosecution of the five persons alleged to have forced the City Council records relating to the enlargement of the Illinois Tunnel Co.'s rights which it became known that Manager George W. Jackson of the Tunnel company was a fugitive. Jackson is said to be thoroughly cognizant with the subway company's affairs and Prosecuting Attorney Healy is anxious to secure him as a witness.

More than a fortnight ago Mr. Healy told detectives on Manager Jackson's trail, but they have been unable to find him. Jackson is known to have living apartments in the Tunnel company's building, whence trapdoors and hidden stairways lead to the labyrinthine maze of the tunnel underneath the business section of Chicago.

Jackson built the subway and no one is more familiar with its intricacies than he. It is thought that it will be possible for him to hide for several weeks in the building and tunnels without discovery by the authorities.

CAB MYSTERY FOR COPPERS

Detective Tom McGrath Suspended Until Superiors Determine What He Carried With Him.

JAG, BUN, SOUSE OR LOAD?

He Carried It Along After Revolver Discharged in Saloon.

"The Mystery of the Closed Cab; or, What Did Detective McGrath Have With Him?" is the title of the latest mystery that confronts the St. Louis police.

Chief Kieley, Assistant Chief Keeley and a score of sleuths are working on the problem. McGrath is making an effort to clear up the mystery because he is not, officially, connected with the police department at present writing.

The facts which are admitted are these: McGrath, erstwhile terror of thieves and stumblers gamblers, was in the saloon at Twenty-third street and Washington avenue, with a friend, at 2 a. m. June 1. McGrath's revolver was discharged and then McGrath and his friend were hauled away in a sea-gorger's back.

McGrath took something with him, and this "something" is really the crux of the situation, the milk in the monkey-faced coconut.

Some say it was a "jag." Other observers declare it was a "bun." The kind, declares it was a "souse," and he adds the information that it was a "peachero," or a more ornate "how-conceivable."

McGrath, when interrogated by Chief Kieley, having anything contradictory, an expert on matters of the cab, and stating that the incident should either be tried or the indictment should be set aside, as it was in the nature of an outrage to hold the indictment over him just to force him to testify.

Partisans of Prosecutor Belch are free in their comments of Attorney-General Hadley's insistence in trying to force the Lee trial first, and attribute his desire to that end as a recognition of the fact that he believed that a conviction in that case could be obtained, while he considered one doubtful in the other cases.

It is generally believed here that Lee was offered immunity when he made his confession to former Attorney-General Crow and agreed to testify before the grand jury that brought forth the indictments against Farris and Smith, and that the State cannot in good faith prosecute him.

GAVE FRIENDS THE SLIP

Arthur Donnelly Weds Katherine Regan on Q. T.

Arthur J. Donnelly's scheme to get married and be well started on his bridal tour before his solicitors friends knew anything about it, worked to perfection Tuesday.

Donnelly does not like for people to "make a fuss over him." So when he and Miss Katherine Regan of 2208 Donelly decided to become Mr. and Mrs. Donnelly, they taxed their ingenuity to dodge the fussmakers. It was easy enough for Donnelly to keep his Record of Deeds Lighthouse agent, and Lighthouse agent to defer publication of the marriage license long enough to give Donnelly a start. Tuesday morning Donnelly and Miss Regan, with a few relatives, went to Sacred Heart Church at 6:30 and were married. At 8 o'clock they took a train for Portland, St. Francisco and other Pacific Coast points.

Donnelly is a son of the late Bernard Donnelly, for 50 years an undertaker in St. Louis.

Pope Blesses Choir.

The Rev. Father George A. Reis, pastor of St. Liborius Catholic Church, Eighteenth and North Market streets, has just received a letter from Rome advising him that Pope Pius X has sent the papal benediction to the members of St. Liborius Church choir in recognition of their consistent and sustained observance of the regulations regarding church music. The Pope especially favors the Gregorian chant and what is known as "plain song," and for 25 years St. Liborius choir has devoted itself largely to this class of church music.

The choir consists of 40 members, three of whom have seen 25 years' service, and these three have received from the pope a silver medal as a mark of special appreciation of their faithful work.

Mill Operatives Scarce.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FALL RIVER, Mass., June 20.—M. C. Borden advanced the wages of his 400 ring spinners about 5 per cent last week without posting notice of what he was about to do. There has been a great scarcity in this class of operatives in the city, they being young help, and it was necessary to advance wages in order to make the work more attractive. The advance amounts to 40 cents a week to each operative. Other mills will not follow the advance for the present.

OPIMUM FIEND AGED 7 WISHES VICTORY FOR DOCTORS OVER HABIT

Boy Eagerly Watches Course of Physicians' Battle. After Failure to Win Unaided—Mother Promises Him Pony When Well.

Dr. John Young Brown and the physicians under him at the City Hospital are using every means in their power to cure 7-year-old Winston Barton of the opium habit.

The boy has been addicted to the habit for a year, and for two months has been in the hospital.

When at the worst stage he took 15 grains of the drug daily, he says. Sometimes he was able to earn the necessary 15 cents; at other times, he says, a certain druggist supplied him free of charge.

It was a fearful day for little Winston Barton when powdered opium was administered to him a year ago, when he was sick, to relieve his pain.

When the little fellow recovered he found that his system craved the insidious drug.

He knew what it was and obtained and used more of it. He became a "fiend." His mother recognized his pitiable condition and sought to lure him away from the drug.

She offered him $100 and a pony if he would quit using opium. The boy tried, but the fascination was too strong for him.

Finally she took him to a private sanitarium. He remained there for 10 days. The mother, who is employed by H. S. Hoffman of 422 Washington boulevard, spoke to him about the case, and Mr. Hoffman took the boy to the City Hospital.

For 12 days he has touched no opium. He has been exceedingly nervous on this account, but the physicians believe that he will yet be restored to his normal condition.

The boy himself is hopeful, and wishes to recover. For a time he was almost a physical and nervous wreck, and became a victim of hallucinations. This stage is now passed.

$75 Missing From Office.

An investigation is to be made by Post-office inspectors of the mysterious disappearance of an envelope containing $75 from the Carr Park substation at 173 Franklin avenue.

Mrs. Hannan, in charge of the station, assisted by Mrs. Cunningham, clerk assigned from the Postoffice to help her, had fixed up the remittance for the day.

CLAIMS DISCOVERY OF LIFE'S SECRET

John Butler Burke, Cambridge
Scientist, Secures Results
From Radium and Bouillon.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and
New York World.
Copyright, 1934, by Post-Dispatch Co.
(New York World).

LONDON, June 20.—The Daily Chronicle puts forward a claim in behalf of John Butler Burke, a young Cambridge scientist, that as a result of recent investigations he has almost certainly demonstrated that spontaneous generation is possible.

By means of radium and sterilized bouillon placed together in a test tube

Burke has succeeded in getting cultures which present many appearances of vitality, such as growth and subdivision. Burke himself declines to make any definite claim beyond saying that the cultures possibly are a primitive form of life.

"If my conclusions and those of scientists who have examined them are correct, they fit in exactly with Herbert Spencer's definition of life."

AFTER ARIZONA MORMONS

Government Begins Proceedings Against Polygamous Practices in Territory.

PHOENIX, Ariz., June 20.—At the instance of the department of justice, United States Attorney Nave will proceed against several Mormons residing in Apache County on the charge of polygamy. Where the charges originated is not known here, and the local officials had no knowledge of them until the recent visit here of Senator Dubois of Idaho, who inquired concerning the progress of the investigations which he understood were going on. As the local authorities were unaware of any charges having been prepared, Dubois wired Washington, with the result as above stated. Subpoenas have been issued for about 20 witnesses, some residing in Utah.

TENNESSEE OFFICIALS GET POINTS ON REFORM

Visiting Executive's Views on Suppression of Boozing and Gambling of Keen Interest to Hosts.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NASHVILLE, Tenn., June 20.—"Americans for America is the slogan that needs to be sounded now," was the statement made to the guests assembled around the annual banquet of the Alumni Association of Vanderbilt University by Gov. Joseph W. Folk of Missouri, guest of honor and principal speaker.

The Governor is here attending the annual commencement exercises of Vanderbilt University of which he is a graduate.

Gov. Folk talked quite freely of his experiences and Gov. Cox got a good many pointers on how to break up bootlegging and grafting and suppressing gambling.

Calls were made on the university faculty and at the student clubs. At the alumni banquet, at which Gov. Folk was the guest of honor, there were men from all over Tennessee and from many states in the union who were at school at Vanderbilt and all joined in a toast to the alumnus, who, entering public life, had demonstrated that there is such a thing in public life and politics as a reform that makes sense.

Gov. Folk's speech was the principal one of the evening and was greeted by great applause. "Americans for America is the slogan that needs to be sounded now," Gov. Folk said. "No nation would dare seriously to dispute it. America for Americans is an accomplished fact. America is for Americans; now let Americans be for Americans."

"Little will it profit any nation to look abroad for new lands to govern while failing properly to govern itself. Useless, worse than useless indeed, is it to fortify against enemies abroad while failing to provide against the enemies at home."

"Many men are eager to go to war and give up their lives for their country, but will not take the trouble to vote in party primaries, in which governmental policies have their birth."

"A vote on the day of the general election is not enough to meet one's civic obligations. Under our system political parties are necessary, for it is through political parties that men come to an agreement on public policies and make known their principles and intentions."

"When good citizens disregard their civic obligations in times of peace they leave control to undesirable elements. Especially is this true of the great cities, where so few of the so-called better element interest themselves in the public business."

"They permit this to be run by another element, who demand of those elected that they be served even if the public interests suffer. If the official refuses to prostitute his trust he is put under the ban of their disapproval, and disbarred from holding office after that."

"That is, if this class have their way, and they usually do, through the default of good citizens. But once in a while the whirlwind of the people's wrath sweeps them aside."

"St. Louis showed that when the people there, weary of the domination of corruptionists, rose up and overthrew them."

"Philadelphia at last awoke from her slumber to the necessity of doing something, and though the game was strong, it was shattered by the shafts of an outraged public under the leadership of Mayor Weaver."

"The power of corruptionists is obtained through the indifference of good citizens. Had citizens be united; good citizens are divided; that is the trouble."

WOMEN WHO CHARM

HEALTH IS THE FIRST ESSENTIAL

It Helps Women to Win and Hold Men's Admiration, Respect and Love.

Woman's greatest gift is the power to inspire admiration, respect, and love. There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of feature.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study. At the first indication of ill-health, painful or irregular menstruation, headache or backache, secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin its use.

Mrs. Chas. F. Brown, Vice-President Mothers' Club, 21 Cedar Terrace, Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

"For nine years I dragged through a miserable existence, suffering with inflammation and falling of the womb, and worn out with pain and weariness. I one day noticed a statement by a woman suffering as I was, but who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I determined to try it. At the end of three months I was a different woman. Every one remarked about it, and my husband fell in love with me all over again. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound built up my entire system, cured the womb trouble, and I felt like a new woman. I am sure it will make every suffering woman strong, well and happy, as it has me."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhoea, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, or nervous prostration may be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

GIRL AFIRE FROM
CRACKER IN AUTOMiss Moore Narrowly Escapes
Serious Burns From Fire
Thrown in Car.

With her dress in flames from a fire-cracker thrown into the automobile in which she was riding, Miss Adelaide Moore of 5232 McPherson avenue narrowly escaped serious injury Monday night. She screamed and the flames were beaten out by L. C. Harvey, who was operating the machine.

One of a crowd of boys near Easton and Belt avenues threw the cracker, but the efforts of the police to find and arrest the offender were unavailing. Miss Moore was taken to the office of a physician, where her burns were dressed and a nerve tonic administered.

BULLET FLEW BY WOMEN

Automobile Club Will Probably Prosecute Offender on Gravois Road.

Bertram B. Culver, whose automobile was fired upon Friday by Constable Schaper of Carondelet township because the chauffeur failed to stop when commanded to do so, will probably take legal action against Schaper.

The constable is said to have acknowledged that he fired two shots. One in the air and one deliberately aimed at the automobile's gasoline tank, and automobilists say that he far exceeded his authority in imperiling the lives of persons who, at the most, were guilty of a misdemeanor only.

There were three ladies and two gentlemen in the automobile with Mr. Culver, and the second bullet from Constable Schaper's pistol is said to have struck the ground about 20 feet short of the machine, then glanced upward and passed perilously near the persons in the automobile. The shooting took place on the Gravois road, near Affton, Mo.

It is now believed that the Automobile Club of St. Louis, of which A. B. Lambert is president, will bring the matter into the courts. The club is organized to promote and protect the interests of automobilists and has a legal department of which M. B. Peunet is chairman. It has a fund in its treasury for the purpose of paying the cost of litigation in defense of automobilists' rights, and this fund, it is said, will be increased to any amount necessary to prevent the endangering of life by automobilists being fired upon, as in the Culver incident.

Dr. Edgar M. Senseney, who accompanied Mr. Culver on Monday on the search for Constable Schaper, says that Miss Alice Johnston of St. Louis, who owns an automobile, was similarly fired upon recently because her chauffeur refused to halt when commanded to do so by a constable on the Clayton road, and that he has heard of other similar cases.

POST-DISPATCH TEST
PROVES SHOP GIRL
SHREWD OBSERVER

MISS EMMA LANG, WHO WON THE $50 PRIZE

Lowell Mellett, Who, as Ivan Whin's Representative, for 10 Days Wandered
About St. Louis With a Price on His Head.Ivan Whin's Representative Tells Suppressed Incidents in 10 Days' Wanderings Looking for a Chance to Give Away Money.

Miss Emma Lang of 2118 Chippewa street is $50 richer than she expected to be today. Yesterday noon she leaned over the end of the notion counter at the Famous, where she is employed, and said to Lowell Mellett of the Post-Dispatch:

"I recognize you as the Post-Dispatch novelist, Ivan Whin."

She did what the Post-Dispatch for 10 days called unavailingly upon the shrewd ones of St. Louis to do. The Post-Dispatch patch printed better photographs of the man for whom it offered rewards than are circulated by the criminal detective bureaus. There was a series of eight pictures, forming a kinetograph series of the man turning around to the right, from a back to a left profile; then there were four photographs of his face, taken by four different photographers.

Yet all the folk who have to do with the detection of persons by photographs—the police, the city detectives, the private detectives, the representatives of charity organizations, the thousands of shrewd persons who live by their wits, and the thousands who believe that their eyesight is as keen as the best detectives, failed to recognize this man.

Ivan Whin, in defense of an incident in a detective story, affirmed to the editor of the Post-Dispatch that it was possible for a man whose photograph was widely disseminated to go about St. Louis for an indefinite period without detection.

It was to test the observing faculties of St. Louis people that the experiment was undertaken. It remained for a wideawake salesgirl in a department store, one of the class in which Ivan Whin has found nine heroines for his romances, to save the reputation for shrewd observation of the people of St. Louis.

Mr. Mellett had been in St. Louis six weeks. He came to the Post-Dispatch from the Indianapolis News. His acquaintances in the city were few and his knowledge of localities small. There was small likelihood that he would be picked up by acquaintances, and, when it became known that persons living in the same boarding house were considering the possibility that he was the representative of Ivan Whin he removed to a hotel. Subsequently he moved to several hotels, as he tells in the narrative which follows.

"Didn't you ring?" he asked, in answer.

"No."

"Then in a husky, timid voice, he started in."

"I recognize you as—"

"Say, you!"—I yelled, savagely as I could.

"What?" he gasped, saving in the middle of the fateful sentence—just as I intended he should.

"If you spring that same old gag on me again, I'll throw you down the elevator shaft! Understand?"

"I—yes!"

"I've had three people try that on me today and I've had enough of it."

"All right, sir. All the boys down-

Well, then, a man who feels like 20 cents certainly feels cheap and I repeat that, for at least ten days of my life, I felt this precise sum.

It's like this, putting a price on a man's head has effect opposite to that people would suppose. You would think he would naturally grow larger with self-esteem and he does for a little while—such a very little while. But that price on his head becomes a wonderful destroyer of egotism, presently.

Every man feels more or less that he is the center of this great universe. He is, as far as he is concerned, but often he doesn't realize that he is not, where others are concerned. Put a price on his head, and he will see things differently.

After he has gone about a couple of days without being recognized, he will feel that he possesses fewer traits of individuality than he had supposed, that the Lord didn't break the mold when He made him.

At the end of ten days, he will have a fairly accurate knowledge of his own utter insignificance.

I did not intend to write an editorial. I refuse to do that without an increase of salary, but you asked me how it feels and I tried to tell you.

As for the events of that lonesome journey about St. Louis trying to prove certain theories of the novelist, Ivan Whin, the trip was not the one unending pleasure jaunt that my reports may have made it seem.

I went into the game possessed of a certain amount of nerve. I came out possessed of a "case of nerves," as a woman designates nervousness.

The first few days were easy for me. The back views, beautiful though they were, were not definite enough to enable anybody to identify me, and for that reason I felt tolerably secure in roaming about, putting questions at everyone I saw. At the same time, I was setting a precedent in the matter of questioning that I found hard to follow when I grew afraid of being recognized.

Before passing the subject of back views, I wish to say that, next to the blue serge suit and the straw hat, I believe that my style of haircut was fastened on by more people as a means of identification than any one other thing. People tried to get a look at the back of my neck as a final means of identification, always.

Those who looked more for the serge suit and the straw hat were only half wrong at that. During my rambles I wore the same coat always and changed my trousers only twice, when there was need of pressing. I changed my hat twice also.

Saturday, Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday I remained at my home, 464 Delmar boulevard, not removing thence until Friday morning. My home-leaving was rather abrupt.

Sitting in the yard Friday morning reading Robert Louis Stevenson's story of Prince Otto—the Prince was a masquerader, too, you remember—I heard two or three young women on a second-floor veranda in the adjoining house using my name, "Ivan Whin." Presently one called out:

"I recognize you as Ivan Whin!"

My absorption in the book grew no smaller.

"I recognize you as Ivan Whin!" It came again.

Then a quick-witted woman of my own household, who had heard the challenge, called to me, asking me to come in. I went.

Since the paper had repeated so often that the password must be given correctly, I felt no compunction about not accepting the half of it, given by the young woman on the veranda.

Carrying a grip, I arrived at the Laclede Hotel about noon and registered. On the book the clerk of the Laclede will find my name, "Elroy Lewis, Muncie, Ind." No. 187 was my room, if I remember correctly.

Maybe also, the boy in charge of the Bell telephone exchange will recall the young man who denounced him as a "hold-up man" for asking a dime for his services in getting a connection with the Post-Dispatch office, Friday evening.

It was at the Southern Hotel, to which I moved next day, that I had the most fun.

About 5:30 p. m. I asked the little brown-eyed maiden in charge of the Kinloch phones to get me connection with "Bill."

"All the lines are busy now," she reported in a moment.

"Is that the Post-Dispatch office?" she inquired. I nodded.

"Suspect the lines are busy with people calling up about Ivan Whin," she suggested.

"That may be so," I admitted.

"I don't believe there is any Ivan Whin, do you?" she volunteered.

"I'm sure I don't know. I would like to have that $75 though."

"A traveling man told me last night that he had been taken for Ivan Whin."

"That's nothing. I was taken for him, myself, this morning."

"You do look something like the pictures."

When I left the telephone booth after talking to the real Ivan Whin, or the real Jon E. Gorse, owner of that sobriquet, Little Brown Eyes stared hard at me. As I got on the elevator, she was still staring.

Half an hour later, while I was busy writing the story of an interesting afternoon at Carondelet Park, there came a knock at the door.

"What do you want?" I asked the bellboy, whom I found outside the door.

"Didn't you ring?" he asked, in answer.

"No."

"Then in a husky, timid voice, he started in."

"I recognize you as—"

"Say, you!"—I yelled, savagely as I could.

"What?" he gasped, saving in the middle of the fateful sentence—just as I intended he should.

"If you spring that same old gag on me again, I'll throw you down the elevator shaft! Understand?"

"I—yes!"

"I've had three people try that on me today and I've had enough of it."

"All right, sir. All the boys down-

At the end of the line she met the big man who stands at the door of the Famous and directs visitors.

"Allow me to congratulate you, Miss Lang!" he said ruefully. "I had thought that if anyone was going to recognize that man it would be me. For a whole week I watched everyone who entered the store in the hope of finding the right man. When he did come in today I had my back turned and he escaped."

Miss Lang laughed at his assumed consternation and passed out into Broadway.

Here there was another surprise. A group of newsboys had congregated to see "the gal that got the $50." As she got on a south-bound Broadway car to take her to her home at 2118 Chippewa street, the boys cheered lustily.

Several of her friends boarded the same car and soon every passenger knew that the lucky captor and the owner of the $50 was on the car. When the conductor came to collect the fare he leaned over and said: "You're the girl, ain't you?"

Miss Lang was in such a cheerful mood that she felt she could hit a little.

"Why, no," she said, "I'm not the girl."

The conductor looked puzzled. Then his eye fell on the reporter and his countenance brightened.

"O, I see," he said, "so you're the feller."

And the reporter not to be outdone gallily fibed and admitted modestly that he was the "feller."

"I thought I recognized you," said the conductor, with a happy smile.

"I didn't know that all this was going to happen, when I saw the young man and said those words to him," said Miss Lang. "All the other girls who saw him at our counter wouldn't speak to him because they were afraid that he might not be the right one, but I

"And the funniest part about the whole thing was that I wasn't looking out for him at all. We girls are so busy all day that we haven't much time to hunt down people. I had seen it in the paper every day, but I didn't think it possible for me to be so lucky. I guess it was those fine pictures in the Sunday Post-Dispatch that gave me such a good idea of his face that I couldn't mistake him."

By that time the car had reached Chippewa street. Miss Lang lives two blocks west of Broadway, on Chippewa, and her walk from the car to her home was something like a triumphal tour.

Miss Lang is very well known in the neighborhood. She likes dancing and is very fond of going to parties and entertainments. The girls in her neighborhood go a great deal to the Sunday night dances at Lemps' Park, and at these Miss Lang is very popular, as she is an excellent dancer.

So when she walked down Chippewa to her home every person she met had something to say in congratulation, and she made very slow progress. At Indiana she met her brother, Charles, who pretended that he had not heard anything about it. When Miss Lang got home she found that he had been the first of the family to learn the news.

At Missouri avenue she met a group of her girl friends, and there was another ten-minute session of questions and congratulations. She reached her house out of breath.

The Lange live on the second floor of the house at 2118 Chippewa. They have a rear porch, which commands a fine view of the river and the surrounding city. On this porch, where they were waiting for her, her father, Peter Lange, who is a yard boss for the Medart Pulley Co., was the first to see her, as she came into the back yard and began to mount the steps.

"So you got the prize, didn't you?" he called down to her.

Then her mother saw her. "How in the world did you ever do it, Emma?" she said, and "Come right up and show it to us."

Miss Lang ran up the stairs gayly. At the top she stopped to kiss her aged grandmother, Mrs. Emeline Young, who was also on the porch. Then she took out the yellow envelope and excitedly drew out the little gold disks. "Five of them," she said, holding up the $10 gold pieces so that they glittered in the sunlight.

There was a round of questions, which Miss Lang answered as quickly as she could.

"I didn't see a paper down at the shop," said Mr. Lange, "and I didn't know anything about it until I came up town, when a neighbor of mine asked me if I had heard about my daughter. I was frightened at first, for there are so many accidents nowadays that I didn't know what had happened to her. Then he showed me the paper, and I don't believe I was ever more surprised in my life."

Mrs. Lange had almost the same story to tell. "I was down at the grocery," she said, "and a friend of mine told me that my daughter had won the $50 prize. I did not believe her at first, for I had not heard Emma speak about the matter, although the other evening Mr. Lange and myself had been talking about it."

Her grandmother, Mrs. Young, heard the news when Charles Lange had come home from work that evening, and at first, she says, she thought he was joking until he showed her the paper.

MISS LANG RECEIVES THE MONEY.

RECEIVED OF THE POST-DISPATCH FIFTY DOLLARS ($50.00) AS A REWARD FOR IDENTIFYING THE REPRESENTATIVE OF THE POST-DISPATCH NOVELIST, IVAN WHIN.

Miss Emma Lang.

JUNE 19, 1905.

where I had left it while in East St. Louis, and carried it to the Hotel Roster, where I stayed Sunday night.

On the way from the station to the hotel occurred an incident similar to several others that I enjoyed during the week. A crowd of small boys, at the corner of Olive and Fifteenth streets, said:

"There goes Ivan Whin!"

"They repeated it once or twice, but I gave no heed. Then they began to shout the name after me, coupled with cries of 'Say, Mister!'"

I was fearful that the attention of older persons on passing street cars and in the streets might be directed to me, and was glad when I could no longer hear the boys' shout.

At the Hotel Roster I registered under the same name as at the other hotels, signing myself for the last time though I knew it not then—as "Elroy Lewis." I was glad when I could no longer hear the boys' shout.

And now, for the last time, thank heaven—with all due esteem for the novelist himself—I sign myself:

"THE REPRESENTATIVE OF IVAN WHIN."

MISS LANG'S FORTUNE
BRINGS SUDDEN FAME

WHEN Miss Emma Lang, the 15-year-old shopgirl in the Famous, whose cleverness resulted in the capture of Ivan Whin's representative and the $50 prize, went home from work Monday evening she was accompanied by a Post-Dispatch reporter.

The reporter arrived at the Famous at 5:55, and had no difficulty in finding Miss Lang, as every one in the shop seemed to have heard of her adventure.

"Oh, you want to take me home? We get off at 6 and then I'll be ready to go."

"Oh, it's been so exciting," she continued, "every one I know and a great many I don't know at all, and in fact, whom I have never seen, have been around to congratulate me. I think this has been the most exciting day in my life."

Just then the bell which announces that the day's work is done rang out loudly, and Miss Lang hurried off to the locker room for her hat and things. "I'll be back in a moment," she called out over her shoulder.

When she returned she was surrounded by a score or more of her friends, each asking her to tell how it all happened, and a chorus of:

"Oh, weren't you just too excited?"

"How did you ever get nerve enough to say it?" After Miss Lang had shaken each girl by the hand and kissed a few of her more affectionate and demonstrative comrades, she started for the door with the Post-Dispatch reporter. But her troubles were not at an end. Lined up on either side of the aisle were all those who had not yet managed to get in their congratulations. Through this gauntlet she had to pass.

"Isn't it awful?" she confided, blushing.

At the end of the line she met the big man who stands at the door of the Famous and directs visitors.

"Allow me to congratulate you, Miss Lang!" he said ruefully. "I had thought that if anyone was going to recognize that man it would be me. For a whole week I watched everyone who entered the store in the hope of finding the right man. When he did come in today I had my back turned and he escaped."

Miss Lang laughed at his assumed consternation and passed out into Broadway.

Here there was another surprise. A group of newsboys had congregated to see "the gal that got the $50." As she got on a south-bound Broadway car to take her to her home at 2118 Chippewa street, the boys cheered lustily.

Several of her friends boarded the same car and soon every passenger knew that the lucky captor and the owner of the $50 was on the car. When the conductor came to collect the fare he leaned over and said: "You're the girl, ain't you?"

Miss Lang was in such a cheerful mood that she felt she could hit a little.

"Why, no," she said, "I'm not the girl."

The conductor looked puzzled. Then his eye fell on the reporter and his countenance brightened.

"O, I see," he said, "so you're the feller."

And the reporter not to be outdone gallily fibed and admitted modestly that he was the "feller."

"I thought I recognized you," said the conductor, with a happy smile.

"I didn't know that all this was going to happen, when I saw the young man and said those words to him," said Miss Lang. "All the other girls who saw him at our counter wouldn't speak to him because they were afraid that he might not be the right one, but I

"And the funniest part about the whole thing was that I wasn't looking out for him at all. We girls are so busy all day that we haven't much time to hunt down people. I had seen it in the paper every day, but I didn't think it possible for me to be so lucky. I guess it was those fine pictures in the Sunday Post-Dispatch that gave me such a good idea of his face that I couldn't mistake him."

By that time the car had reached Chippewa street. Miss Lang lives two blocks west of Broadway, on Chippewa, and her walk from the car to her home was something like a triumphal tour.

Miss Lang is very well known in the neighborhood. She likes dancing and is very fond of going to parties and entertainments. The girls in her neighborhood go a great deal to the Sunday night dances at Lemps' Park, and at these Miss Lang is very popular, as she is an excellent dancer.

So when she walked down Chippewa to her home every person she met had something to say in congratulation, and she made very slow progress. At Indiana she met her brother, Charles, who pretended that he had not heard anything about it. When Miss Lang got home she found that he had been the first of the family to learn the news.

At Missouri avenue she met a group of her girl friends, and there was another ten-minute session of questions and congratulations. She reached her house out of breath.

The Lange live on the second floor of the house at 2118 Chippewa. They have a rear porch, which commands a fine view of the river and the surrounding city. On this porch, where they were waiting for her, her father, Peter Lange, who is a yard boss for the Medart Pulley Co., was the first to see her, as she came into the back yard and began to mount the steps.

"So you got the prize, didn't you?" he called down to her.

Then her mother saw her. "How in the world did you ever do it, Emma?" she said, and "Come right up and show it to us."

Miss Lang ran up the stairs gayly. At the top she stopped to kiss her aged grandmother, Mrs. Emeline Young, who was also on the porch. Then she took out the yellow envelope and excitedly drew out the little gold disks. "Five of them," she said, holding up the $10 gold pieces so that they glittered in the sunlight.

There was a round of questions, which Miss Lang answered as quickly as she could.

"I didn't see a paper down at the shop," said Mr. Lange, "and I didn't know anything about it until I came up town, when a neighbor of mine asked me if I had heard about my daughter. I was frightened at first, for there are so many accidents nowadays that I didn't know what had happened to her. Then he showed me the paper, and I don't believe I was ever more surprised in my life."

A PRICE ON YOUR HEAD

By Lowell Mellett,
Ivan Whin's Representative
HOW DOES it feel to have a price of $75 on your head?

Lots of people have asked me that.

After carefully examining my emotions, after mentally reviewing my school course in psychology, after analyzing all the sensations that passed through my system during the past ten days, and after making the natural comparisons that follow the removal of the price, I am prepared to say that it feels—

Like 30 cents!

And if the price had been $10 or ten hundred dollars, instead of $75, the feeling could be told in the same number of cents.

Don't smile at that simile. It has a very definite meaning. Thirty cents is a cheap price for any man, isn't it?

IN DOUBT ABOUT IT.

Sheriff Herpel of St. Louis County has not decided whether he will enforce the law or not.
What did he agree to do when he took the office?
Betting at the racetrack is a felony under the law. Sheriff Herpel has been apprised of the fact that the law against it went into effect last Saturday. Gov. Folk has supplemented the official notice with plain instructions. "This felonious conduct," he tells the Sheriff, "cannot and will not be tolerated in Missouri." But Sheriff Herpel doesn't know what he will do about it.

If he excuses his neglect to enforce the law by pleading that he must await the outcome of the case brought as a test, the answer is that such a plea is nonsense. Would he let killing go on without interference, awaiting a test murder case?
The Sheriff's duty is plain. He knows what it is.
If he does not perform it he will expose himself to criticism which no honest public officer can endure without the keenest shame.

Blaming the chauffeur will not stop automobile lawlessness. Revoking the licenses of the reckless will help. Jail alone will cure it.

HIGH FINANCE NOT AMERICAN.

It is a mistake to suppose that high finance is confined to the United States.
The London cable to the Sunday Post-Dispatch relating in detail the scandal in the British War Office goes to show that the crime is as ripe there as here.
About $35,000,000 was lost in a few months during the South African war by graft and speculation. And desperate efforts are being made to prevent the inquiry touching the man higher up.
Of similar character are the stories of graft in the Russian military service. The Krupps, it appears, had several members of the staff on their pay-rolls, and got contracts by means of this influence which would have been awarded to their competitors.

It may become a question between high finance and national safety. When monarchs and statesmen preach the yellow terror they should not forget to strengthen their defenses. And common honesty is one of the indispensable elements of national strength. Who can say that Russia's defeat would have been so total and irrevocable had her administration been honest during the past 30 years? And how much of England's bad luck in that South African adventure was due to the corruption in the army supply service?

Thomas F. Ryan was a partner of Mr. Cleveland's Secretary of the Navy. The chairman of his Equitable board is Mr. Roosevelt's Secretary of the Navy and a son of Mr. Cleveland's Secretary of Agriculture. One of his counsel was Secretary of War in the Cabinet of Mr. McKinley and also of Mr. Roosevelt. Mr. Ryan has very prominent political connections.

HUNTER AND HUNTED.

It was St. Chrysostom who said that woman is "a necessary evil, a natural temptation, a desirable calamity, a domestic peril, a deadly fascination and a painted ill." And ever since his day men have been found to echo his sentiments. Perhaps the most strenuous—certainly the most insidious—present-day disciple of Chrysostom in his misogynous teachings is George Bernard Shaw, in whose plays all the women are made to pose as "natural temptations," the men invariably falling victim to their wiles.
That Shaw's idea of woman's role is gaining ground, at least in England, is shown by the speech of Magistrate Plowden, at the Junior Bar banquet at Gray's Inn Hall, London, reported in Sunday's Post-Dispatch. Mr. Plowden told the assembled lawyers that:

"There is no decrease in marriage. It is simply a temporary lull in that husband-hunting chase which has gone on as long as civilization.
"Although some women have adopted business careers for themselves, they have no serious intention of ceasing to hunt their lawful prey."
Before going farther with the campaign for female suffrage, it might be well for the women who are fighting that campaign to assure the men that they are not being hunted. Otherwise they may take alarm and refuse to place this new weapon in the hands of their hunters.

So long as there is a Weaver among the Republicans and a Folk among Democrats, no city or state need despair of checking hoodling.

IVAN WHIN IDENTIFIED.

After wandering about the streets for days, almost begging policemen, detectives and people supposed to be sharp-sighted to discover him, Ivan Whin was identified by Miss Emma Lang, a slip of a girl employed in a department store.

Miss Lang did not employ deduction, upon which the detectives relied. She used her eyes.

"He was a nice-looking young man," she said.
Then instead of setting her brain to work deducing something she gave him another look and the truth flashed upon her. She recognized him in due form and won the prize.

Yesterday Ivan Whin, or rather the mysterious young man who represented that famous man in letters, was the most talked about young man in St. Louis. In homes, hotels, restaurants, offices, factories, on the street, in trolley cars—everywhere
—750,000 men, women and children were talking of Ivan Whin, his representative. It is safe to say that no other man, not even President Roosevelt or Admiral Togo, ever was made the subject of such universal speculation and comment.

Before Ivan Whin's representative is forgotten, let the reader ask himself or herself why he was not discovered sooner. For ten days his picture was displayed in the columns of the Post-Dispatch, presenting views from all sides, as well as front and back.
For ten days he walked the streets, boldly thrust himself forward, talked about himself with all sorts of people, not one of whom recognized him as a $50 prize. Of all the thousands who looked at him only one saw him—a sharp-eyed girl behind a counter.

Moral: Use your eyes. It is one thing to look,
it is quite another to see what you look at.

Now the world is more than ever amazed. A church raffle has been stopped in Philadelphia "because it was gambling."

ON "CUTTING OUT" A HABIT.

Somewhere in St. Louis there is a young man who is in a sad state of doubt. To the "People's Column" of the Post-Dispatch he writes:
"I am awfully fond of the tobacco habit, smoking and chewing. Will some of your readers tell me how to cut it out?"

We say advisedly that this man is young. Were he a person of mature age he would not write to strangers for advice. He would seek out for himself a means of suppressing the tobacco habit. He would go into court and get out a permanent injunction against himself. If not that, he would make a vow to his wife, or, if not married, to his best girl, to quit the use of tobacco. Or he would go before a notary public and swear off for a year. Or he would get down on his marrow bones and pray over the matter, as the church people of Philadelphia did for Mayor Weaver. Or, what would be better, he would simply quit. He might have to grit his teeth to do it, but he would quit. That is always the way about things we are "awfully fond of."

That, sonny, is the way to "cut it out."
When there is a murderous tragedy in a fishing party the origin of the trouble may generally be traced to the "bait."

CHEERING TOGO.

While the czar is haggling over the reform proposals and alternately promising a popular assembly and retracting the promise, the sailors in the naval barracks are cheering Togo and the Japanese as the "Saviors of Russia."
Things are in a bad way when a people hate their Government and cheer the enemy who has just sent a few thousand of their compatriots to the bottom of the sea.

On this showing the real enemy of Russia is not Tokio, but in St. Petersburg. The Russian people look to the Mikado, his generals and admirals to release them from conditions which have become intolerable.

Russia is a house divided against itself. The differences between the nation and the rulers seem irreconcilable. For a century the people have been fighting the battles and paying the bills, but have not obtained any of the benefits, if any accruing, from their self-sacrifice.

In the long run the total defeat of Russia in this war will probably result in good to the Russian people. It has already discredited the governing classes, who have demonstrated their incompetency with mathematical precision. The czar is no longer spoken of with affectionate respect as the little father.
The Mikado appears as a good stepfather. It is a strange outcome for a war supposed to spring from race antipathies. Those cheers for Togo mean more than a dozen assassinations.

Petroleum Nasby, a heavy drinker, kept standing in his Toledo Blade line, "Pulverize the rum power!" The Westliche Post keeps standing the line, "Away with the Sunday law!"

"Big Frank" McCoy, dying ex-burglar, is "glad the things we used to do aren't done any more," and yet one thing was done better than. The big robbers mostly went to jail.

With the vineless potato of Montana, the seedless apple of Colorado and the new fast-growing walnut trees we are promised, we shall surely be a happy people.

The falling off of 50 per cent in London drinking is remarkable. If the greatest of cities can change so much, all cities may become drier.

Great Britain's flying squadron will be great if it never flies in the wrong direction.

How is Secretary Shaw to defend advances in the price of peanuts?

Look Out, or You'll Get an LL.D.!

By Ferdinand G. Long.

They're branding brand new LL. D.'s
On every one in sight.
So, when they hand you one of these Express LL. D.-light!

A LAST LOOK AROUND

All that explodes is not patriotism.

No more bell-hops for the liquor hopper.

The finding of Ivan Whin will become a story of old lang syne.

What were the camera fields doing to permit Roosevelt to get lost Sunday?

The cribstone still hangs fire, but the advised former is here with the goods.

San Francisco has taken possession of its street railways without consulting
Mr. Dairymple.

Lid and law are alliterative, and perhaps Gov. Folk can convince Sheriff Herpel that they are also synonymous.

From the money he gets out of his
New York estates, William Waldorf
Astor is expending $6,000,000 on Hever Castle, Kent, England. Did you hear!

A detective caught Kaffies in New York, but a girl did the trick with Ivan Whin in St. Louis. Our St. Louis girls must be smarter than our detectives.

The Henderson (Ky.) Gleaner says that the great cities will ruin the United States, and that the only hope is in those who cultivate the soil. How does it account for the fact that St. Louis is obeying the Sunday closing law, while St. Louis County refuses to do so? It is Country saloon keepers and a country sheriff

DAMAGES FOR BASEBALL INJURY

New York Justice Rules That Persons Attend Ball Games at Their Own Risk.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Persons who attend baseball games do so at their own risk, according to a decision handed down by Justice McComb today in a damage suit brought by a young woman who claims to have been injured by a foul ball.

The complainant was an enthusiastic admirer of the game. On September 3, 1904, while a spectator at the contest on the Polo grounds between New York National Club and the Boston, a foul ball hit her on the nose. The doctor saved her from permanent disfigurement, but she has brought suit for damages in the sum of $50 against the New York Club's management. The complainant's counsel asserted that the management was responsible for everything that went wrong on the grounds and that the injury was clearly due to the lack of proper safeguard. The justice, however, ruled that those who entered the grounds did so at their own risk.

WILLIE LEWIS WAS CARDINAL GAME BEATEN BY RYAN

Cong Twice Saved Clever New York Fighter—Johnson to Meet Munroe.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—Willie Lewis of New York was twice saved by the bell from being knocked out by Adam Ryan of this city in the National Athletic Club last night. Ryan put up a wonderfully clever exhibition against the New Yorker and punished the latter severely in four of the rounds. Lewis had the better of the opening round, when he jabbed Ryan repeatedly in the face. Adam could only reach Willie in the clinches, for at long range the New Yorker proved entirely too speedy for his opponent.

From the start of the second round the bout was all in Ryan's favor. Lewis tried in the second round to keep Adam off with jabs, but the latter kept boring in and finally hooked his left wrist with Lewis' right. Near the end of the round Adam staggered Lewis with a left swing to the jaw. In the third round the men fought very fast, with Ryan landing the harder punches. At the start of the fourth round Ryan's body. Then Willie staggered Adam with a right swing on the jaw. The latter came back with a hard left swing on Lewis' eye, drawing blood, and the men went at it savagely. Ryan had the better of the exchanges and staggered his opponent with a left hook on the jaw. At the bell Lewis was bleeding from the eye and mouth. Lewis was very weak at the finish, while Ryan was fresh.

It was announced that Jack Johnson had been matched to box Jack Munroe on Monday night, and that each man posted a forfeit that the bout should be on the level.

BLOOD POISON MAN'S GREATEST ENEMY

The disease that has done more than any other to wreck, ruin and humiliate life is Contagious Blood Poison. Sorrow, shame and suffering go hand in hand with this great enemy, and man has always hated and fought it as he has no other disease. It is the most powerful of all poisons; no matter how pure the blood may be when it virus enters, the entire circulation becomes poisoned and its chain of horrible symptoms begin to show. Usually the first sign is a small sore or ulcer, not at all alarming in appearance, but the blood is being saturated with the deadly poison, and soon the mouth and throat begin to ulcerate, the hair and eyebrows drop out, a red eruption breaks out on the body, copper-colored spots and sores make their appearance and the disease hereditary, being transmitted from parent to child, in the form of scrofula, weak eyes, soft bones, puffy constitutions, etc., but is also so highly contagious that many a life has been ruined by a friendly handshake, or from using the toilet articles of one infected with the poison. To cure this blighting, deadly cure the blood must be purified, and nothing will do it so quickly and surely as S. S. S. It goes down to the very bottom of the system, drives out every particle of the blood poison, cleans the blood clean and strong, it does not hide or cover up anything, but from the first begins to expel the poison and build up and strengthen the system. S. S. S. is guaranteed perfectly vegetable. We offer a reward of $1000 for proof that it contains a particle of mineral of any kind. Book on the disease, with instructions for home treatment and any advice desired without charge.

DR. LUFF'S SCIENTIFIC, CERTAIN AND COMPLETE CURE FOR

Weak, Nervous, Restless at night, and Weak, Aching Back, Disordered Kidneys, Inflamed Prostate, Impotent, Lack of Energy, Loss of Memory, Hoarse, Dry, Face Pimples and Dark Circles under eyes.

An endless number of men have one or more of the above symptoms and drug for it day in and day out in despair of a prosperous, happy future, and well they may, for neglected, their health is sure to be wrecked by a complete loss of physical, mental and sexual power.

My method completely and permanently cures all the above symptoms and gives a new, healthy, and vigorous life.

My scientific, systematic course of treatment for weak, nervous, broken-down youth and men, who are fatter, dissipated and exhausted, unfitted themselves for work and the enjoyment of life, is a system that has been tested many times over and proven entirely satisfactory in every case. It is totally different from the many skinning cures and tablets, and the stimulating, stomach-ruining drugs given by would-be specialists. My treatment for all the symptoms indicating failing manhood is a harmless, though so effective as to remove them immediately. It is constitutional, and, therefore, by purifying and rebuilding the blood, it cures the nervous system, nothing the least, it builds energy and ambition, that lead into a prime, healthy, manly life of new life.

CURE OR NO CHANGE—Absolutely no change unless satisfaction is given.

My patients receive an instrument of writing insuring them of every dollar paid for services refunded in case of failure to completely cure in a specified length of time, and receive entire satisfaction, so that the disease will never return, and my well-known financial standing is sufficient evidence to anyone that I am entirely responsible for any and every dollar I receive for my services.

Consultation Free. Confidentiality and privacy, both at office and by correspondence. Terms and very reasonable charges are always made to suit the convenience of those applying for treatment. No one treated elsewhere until you have verified my methods and terms. Office hours during week, 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.; Sunday, 9 to 11.

"No Discord in Our Team," Declares Manager Tenney

"These stories from Pittsburgh regarding the inharmonious spirit on our team and the probable desertion of five of our best men, were as fine examples of imagination as any newspaper writer ever displayed," said Fred Tenney, manager-captain of the Boston Nationals at the Southern Hotel Tuesday morning.

"Does it look as though there were discord on our team when you size up the scores we ran in Smoketown? Does it not appear that there was more trouble in the Pittsburgh team than among our aggregation when you recall that it beat them two out of three games? Does a team that is as far down in the race as we are make as good a showing against a pennant-winning aggregation when its players are dissatisfied and about to desert as we have made against the Pirates?"

"After that story was published I made a careful investigation of the team's affairs, although I had been in no close touch with the players that I knew that if anything of the kind was brewing I should have learned it long ago. My investigation, which included questioning of all the players whose names were mentioned, as well as other members of the team, developed the fact that there was no foundation even for rumors of desertion. I expect to take my team back to Boston intact, and there is no doubt in my mind that they'll stick with me as long as the Boston club desires their services. No desertions for them."

"Sharpe, who was accused of being in the plot to jump to the outlaw league, had this to say on the subject. 'Boston might not miss me should I jump, but as long as I suit Boston I am going to stay. I could have been floored with a feather after I read the story that I was the instigator of an insurrection and was to get an automobile for my trouble. No one in the Tri-State League has ever approached me and I wouldn't take the jump.'"

"The Cardinals-Boston game scheduled for Tuesday at League Park was declared off on account of wet grounds. The terrific downpour of rain Tuesday morning left the grounds unfit for play and Managers Tenney and Burke, after a conference at 10 o'clock, decided to call the game off."
